(By Roy W. Howard.)
CHICAGO, June 19.—Congressman James S. Sherman of New York was today given the nomination for vice president on a ticket of which William Howard Taft was yesterday chosen the head. After he had received 816 votes—114 more than were given Taft—Sherman's nomination was made unanimous. While Ohio; Kellogg, Minnesota; Chas. Nagel, Missouri; Wm. L. Ward, New York; Borah, Idaho; E. C. Duncan, North Carolina, and F. O. Lowden, Illinois.

COLISEUM, CHICAGO, June 19.—It was evident before the convention convened at 10:19 a. m. President Roosevelt had acceded to the prayer of Iowa not to take Dolliver out of the state with the vice presidency, and had likewise harkened to the New Yorkers to put a New York man on the ticket, but it was an obvious clinch for Congressman Jas. S. Sherman, and he won hands down. Lodge, Voris and Burton all predicted his election on the first ballot and the forecast came true.

Chairman Lodge when asked at 10:15 what he thought of the vice presidential situation, replied: "There's nothing to it but Sherman."

It was all Sherman when the delegates began arriving at convention hall. The New Yorker's boom grew like a mushroom during the early hours and the New Yorkers came in to the convention hall full of ginger and confidence claiming to have lined up solid delegations from the following states: New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Washington, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Texas and Louisiana.

Hundreds of Sherman buttons appeared on lapels. Joe Cannon was given an ovation when he walked in to the hall.

Following the call to order by Lodge, Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber delivered a prayer.

Lodge then formally announced the nomination of Taft for the presidency.

Sherman Appears.
C. S. Osborn, of Michigan, moved nominating addresses for vice president be limited to ten minutes, and seconding speeches to five minutes each.

Before Lodge could put the motion the band outside struck up and drowned his voice. Wild yells "Let 'em in," came from all quarters, and he nodded to the doorkeeper.

In the middle of the New Yorkers, who followed the band, was Sherman, in person, a bright smile illuminating his usually florid countenance. Sherman was greeted by hearty cheers.

When the Osborn motion carried the chairman started to call the states for nominations for the vice presidency.

When Delaware was called Delegate Dupont arose and announced he yielded to New York. Amid a wave of cheers former Governor Tim Woodruff came to the front with a spring, and as he turned to the audience the New Yorkers went wild for a few seconds.

Woodruff said:

Sherman Nominated.
"Gentlemen of the convention: Representing the great Empire state, the most forward of the industrial commonwealths of the nation, the pivotal state of the union; I am not here merely to present a candidate for vice president. We, delegates from New York, feel unless you accord to our great state which has successfully presented a candidate for president, the second place on the ticket we will be compelled to return our vote to our constituency without that certainty which means success to the ticket. Let me call to your attention one striking fact, that is no republican national ticket has ever been named by the republicans without a New Yorker, and it has never been defeated but once, and that was when the democrats had the foresight to name for first place the democrats of New York."

"Our candidate is one of the strongest in the nation. As president of a national bank he is versed in the intricate problems of business, and finance. In his capacity of a member of congress, he is versed in the problems of the nation's needs. He is the choice of most of you. On behalf of the united delegation of New York I present the name of that stalwart republican, James S. Sherman, of New York."

A Double Ovation.
The mention of Sherman's name was the signal for a great demonstration. Delegates standing on chairs were all over the hall. As seen forcing his way to the front. He had been given the courtesy of the floor and emerged from his seclusion at Union League club, for the purpose of seconding Sherman's nomination. No speaker who yet ascended the platform received such an ovation. The delegates, alternates, and officials joined the galleries in a mighty roar.

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen," he began, "I would rather be doorkeeper in the house of the Lord than to dwell in tents of wickedness. Since his organization the party of law and wisdom has been keeping in the path of civilization. This republican party has nominated for its leader, Ohio's great son, W. H. the throng was filling out the band struck up "Alice, Where Art Thou" to which Mrs. Longworth from a place in the visitors' gallery bowed assent.

Two others, Murphy of New Jersey and Gov. Guild of Massachusetts, were placed in nomination, and in the voting Gov. Sheldon of Nebraska and Fairbanks each received recognition.

The rear seat on the team roller" was dusted off for Sherman early today after several dollars worth of long distance telephone tolls had been burned in conversation between Chicago and Washington. It was internal troubles, which refused to lend itself to several treatments of administration cure-all salve, which put Dolliver out of the running. Hanly's speech yesterday let the wind out of Fairbanks and the coy reformation boom, and before the gavel fell today it was seen the nomination was Sherman's beyond the possibility of a doubt.

National Committee Meets.
At its session immediately after adjournment of the convention the new national committee selected Gen. Powell Clayton of Arkansas to serve as temporary chairman, until such a time as the candidates decide upon the man they desire to fill the office permanently. Elmer Dover was re-elected secretary, and Stone, sergeant-at-arms. The committee chose as a subcommittee to wait on the candidates and learn their choice of permanent chairman, Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, chairman; Herrick,

CHICAGO, June 19.—For president.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

This and the adoption of a platform was the net result of yesterday's session of the republican convention.

A Final Outburst.

When the clerk with the "megaphone voice" announced the result there was tremendous cheering on the part of 16,000 people who had sweltered through the afternoon, forming the greatest crowd that ever packed the Coliseum.

But the shouting, the applause, the waving of flags, and handkerchiefs, and coats, and hats, though vigorous enough, was of brief duration. It was the last effort of an audience that had worn itself out in a previous demonstration of twenty minutes.

A monster picture of the favorite candidate that had been carried triumphantly through the hall by certain enthusiastic delegates from Texas, was taken to the platform and placed in a conspicuous position.

The Ohio delegation made one last

LOCAL DEMOCRATS "TICKLED T' DEATH"

SEE BRYAN VICTORY AS RESULT OF REPUBLICAN ACTION

SAY TAFT IS NOT STRONG

Claim He Is Not the People's Choice and that the Platform Is Big Boost for Democrats

La Crosse democrats are "tickled t' death" with the result of the Chicago republican convention. They see in it victory for William J. Bryan at the November election. They assert that Secretary Taft was not the choice of the party, but simply of President Roosevelt; that the platform was a compromise, satisfying nobody; laid especial stress on the adjournment until today as indicating that the leaders were waiting orders from Washington as to the vice presidency, and predicted that William Jennings Bryan would be elected in November.

People for Roosevelt.
"As far as I could judge," said City Attorney John F. Doherty, "the sentiment in and about the convention, I will say that the people seemed to be surcharged with enthusiasm for Roosevelt but seemed to be unwilling to accept another of his choice, and reluctantly nominated Taft. I do not think that this undercurrent of sentiment against Taft is due to anything they have against him personally, but more to the fact that they feel that he may lose as against his distinguished rival, who is just as good as chosen. Naturally, and perhaps unconsciously, a democrat may see weaknesses in the candidate of the opposite party, but yet I cannot but feel as Woodford of New York said in presenting Hughes that there are but two men among republicans, who stand a show of carrying New York. One occupies the white house at Washington, and the other the state house at Albany. "Taft may grow in public favor, but Bryan will, in my opinion, be elected."

Lacks Strength Says Wolfe.
"Personally, Taft is a good man," said Attorney W. F. Wolfe when seen today, "but he lacks the strength necessary to defeat William Jennings Bryan at the next election. If the conditions continue as they have since last October, Bryan will be elected in spite of anyone whom the republicans might have nominated. This is said on the theory that the voters out of employment will vote against the party in power. This is true, as has been shown on previous occasions. In 1876, three years after the panic of 1873, this was proven as it was again in 1896. It is a condition that has always prevailed and will continue. Taft's chief element of weakness, if the news is true, is the negro vote, and he will have to carry Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and other border states. In the second place he will get no support from the laboring class, notwithstanding the attempt to secure this vote by the adoption of the anti-injunction plank."

Not Like Roosevelt.
Attorney O. R. Skaar said: "I think that Taft isn't able to hold the republican vote like Roosevelt did, and also that he will fail to hold the

The exercises will be held at the La Crosse theatre June 26, and immediately after the commencement exercises the junior prom will be given at the Germania hall. This does not come under the jurisdiction of the Teachers' and Parents' association and the dancing will not be stopped at twelve o'clock. The program is as follows:

ST. LOUIS MENACED BY GREAT FLOODS

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—With great gaps made in the levees during the night, the river already is above the highest stage predicted and is rising and the city itself is seriously menaced today; buildings along the levee are weighted down with rock to prevent their being carried off their foundations. The C. & A. railroad embankment alone holds the Mississippi from the lands above the city.

In towns on the Illinois side of the river many streets are flooded; at St. Charles traffic is stopped over the Missouri bridge, because of its weakened condition.

GRAND RUSH MADE FOR CHOICE LOTS

FIFTY ARE SOLD DURING THE NIGHT AT HILLVIEW

DOUBLE THAT NUMBER TODAY

Best Class of People Appreciate Opportunity and All Will Be Sold by Sunday

In the dead of the night immediately after the cathedral clock had struck twelve times, the Manning & Wellman addition began to take on a business-like aspect. People moved here and there and occasionally a match flared up like a firefly revealing a face anxiously scanning a card in the selection of a lot. When morning came over fifty stakes were without cards and fifty or more contracts were made at the business office on the Manning and Wellman addition.

The Hillview sale opened as predicted, with a rush. Many tags were taken during the night showing that people had been at the grounds before hand and had spotted the lot they wanted. Mr. Manning of the real estate firm predicted that by 3 o'clock this afternoon over one hundred lots will have been sold and from the present outlook his prophecy stands a good show of coming true.

Many of the choice lots remain as the lots were taken with more regard for price than for the situation. The remaining lots range from $115 to $215 including the best plots in the addition. The firm is being congratulated on the fine class of buyers which have taken an interest in the sale and the fact that the one man purchased six lots shows that there is at least one party who appreciates the opportunity. Manning & Wellman are on the grounds and invite the inspection of their property. School teachers, employees of the best houses in the city and well-to-do people are buying the lots preparatory to building or to selling when the price of real estate in that section goes up.

Mr. Manning when seen today by a reporter said that there would not be one lot left of the plat by dark, Sunday evening. It is expected that the most lots will be sold on Sunday afternoon when the prospective buyers can bring their friends and families to inspect the property. The location of Hillview Place, its situation near the golf grounds, and bounded on one side by Myrick park, makes a rise in the value of the lots inevitable.

TAFT SUCCEEDED BY GEN. WRIGHT

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19.—It was announced Gen. Luke Wright, of Tennessee, former governor of the Philippines, later ambassador to Japan, would succeed Taft as secretary of war. Official announcement was made at the white house of the resignation of Taft, and the appointment of Gen. Luke E. Wright of Tennessee to succeed him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC
The Sunday school classes of the Presbyterian church will hold their annual picnic tomorrow afternoon at Myrick park.

WIS. FURNISHED THE SENSATIONS OF CONVENTION

CHAIRMAN LODGE TRIED TO SQUELCH DEMONSTRATION

WILD TUMULT FOR "BOB"

INSTRUCTED OFFICERS MENACED THE ENTHUSIASTS

DELEGATES FROWNED IT DOWN

But There's No Telling What Would Have Happened Had Nomination Come Earlier in the Day

(By A. M. Brayton.)

CHICAGO, June 19.—Wisconsin, alphabetically the "tail-ender" in the nominating schedule of the states, finished a triumphant last in the presidential handicap, and its final burst of speed left many wondering what might have been the outcome had the La Follette mount not carried so much weight of machine opposition. That the handicap was a heavy one was indicated by the fact that Chairman Lodge cried to bring the La Follette demonstration to a premature close, the effort going to the point of personal interference.

Tried to Squelch Tumult

After a day in which Wisconsin furnished all the sensations and held up the convention with platform planks that were huge stumbling blocks to the advocates of compromise with reaction, until it was necessary to adjourn the convention until today to finish the vice presidential and other business, the galleries and throngs of spectators below burst spontaneously into a tumult of applause when G. A. A. McGee concluded a powerful eulogy of Robert M. La Follette at the climax of his speech seconding the nomination of the Wisconsin senator. For twenty minutes the crowd yelled itself hoarse, while the delegates—barring Wisconsin—sat stolidly through an effort to frown down the Badger upstart, the chairman of the national republican convention rapping for order, and a command going out from some mysterious source which resulted in the police and guards approaching demonstrative rooters and asking them to desist. So strong was this effort that an officer went to National Committeeman Rogers, in the Wisconsin delegation, and directed him to get down from his chair and cease creating a disturbance.

More Demonstrative Than Teddy's
The La Follette demonstration was even more demonstrative than the Roosevelt demonstration of the day before, and was characterized by that same spontaneity. What either of them would have been had they been accompanied by the preconceived accessories that marked the Taft demonstration one can hardly imagine. In the latter the delegates with painted banners and devices calculated to fire the impulses of the throng circled the coliseum and every bit of machinery run by the government throttle was brought into play to intensify and prolong the

Pitching Staff Is Weak Says Senator
In another month the standing of the clubs in this league will probably indicate which teams will finish in the first division and those which will make up the second division, as already some of the club are setting down to a steady, winning pace. Wausau has struck its gait rather early, and it looks as though the lumberjacks will pull away for a good lead which will be hard to overcome, even though some of the other clubs do develop a whole lot of speed toward the close of the season. At this time it is hard to pick the first division teams, but one line of dope indicates that this division will be made up of Wausau, Madison, Freeport and Fond du Lac.

This is Rockford's first year in the state league and it has a very slim chance of breaking into the first section. Oshkosh is struggling along, and on paper does not compare very favorably with the other clubs. La Crosse was in the lead for a time, but Hawley's pitchers do not look strong enough to carry him into the first division this year. Green Bay started out in whirlwind fashion, and it is to be considered for Vance and Miller are clever pitchers and will win many games. However, there are various reasons why this club looks more like a second division organization than one to be given a place in the first section. Some of the men are said to be erratic in more ways than one, and this weakness may prove fatal. This club has some good hitters, and it fights hard.

That long looked for day has arrived.

This afternoon at the League park the enthusiastic fans will have an opportunity to witness a horrible massacre when the Pretzels meet the Colts. What the real outcome will be can not be ascertained at this moment, but in what little betting is going on about the city, the odds favor La Crosse on two out of the three games.

With Eberly back into the game, and playing in his old form, La Crosse has four pitchers who will hold their own against any of the opposing team's twirlers. With Pretzelville here today, the game that the fans have long been waiting for, and together with ladies' day at the park, one of the largest crowds of the season is expected, and the way the Colts will plow into those canners will be nothing slow. La Crosse struck a bunch of hard luck on their recent trip among the prohibition towns, and they are now determined to take revenge at home and a revenge that will be sweet for the fans to see. While the Colts are not in the best condition possible, they are game and will fight to the last. Graves will be out of the game for a few days owing to an injury in his hand, and his garden will be occupied by Safford, with Hastings and Duchien on either side for assistance. The infield will remain the same with the exception of the catcher, and Pink will send Harnes in for the first of the series. Jones or Baillies will do the slab work.

TRACEY LEADS THE LA CROSSE BATTERS

First Baseman Harry Tracey still leads the local club in batting. Although Safford and Killian have a higher percentage they have only played in a few games and cannot be rated among the players who have had a majority of the games to go through. Killian, while he has played in fourteen games, is batting at a 295 clip and if he can retain that lead will give promises for a higher class league next season. Safford who was recently secured by the Colts is batting at a 250 clip and has accepted 26 chances in the field without an error, giving him a perfect percentage in fielding. Becker, the little shortstop, is batting 273 with Du Chien following. Graves and Hastings are at the 250 mark. Pitcher Jones, while he has been unable to hit the ball effectively, still maintains his perfect fielding. In the regulars, Catcher Harnes leads in the fielding, having accepted 124 chances with only two errors and has a record of 986. Tracey has accepted 248 chances with five errors.

Flynn leads the pitchers, having won six out of eight games he participated in. Jones is second, having won six out of nine games.

The records for the Colts up to today's game follows:

HOW ROCKFORD ENJOYS WINNING

The following article was clipped from the Register Gazette on their opinion of Manager Hawley and his "Punks":

There was a young pitcher named Flynn.
Not handsome and really quite thin;
And the way the tailenders
Took after his benders
Was declared by onlookers a sin.

If we only had La Crosse for an opponent a matter of a fortnight the last ditch would be but an unpleasant memory. We put "Pink" and his Punks under the steam roller again yesterday and flattened them considerably.

That is, all but Pink. It takes a bigger roller than any we have in stock to run over Pink in his present condition. Have you seen him? Gee, but he is a funny piece of architecture in that awful green suit as he stands out on the coaching lines. Not much like the trim athlete of the old days when those darting benders he projected so superbly heaped confusion on the best batsmen in the land! Of amazing girth is Pink now, and he moves with the careful step of a blindfolded tightrope walker.

It would be hard yesterday to convince a stranger to the league that Rockford occupies a lower place than La Crosse. The visitors couldn't give the Infant Awfuls a warming-up gallop. It was as easy as breaking into the Old Folks' home and smashing over the rocking chairs, and almost as mean. Rockford made sixteen hits for a total of twenty-five bases, and the total humiliation of the enemy was represented by a score of 10 to 4.

Gee, but La Crosse is easy! Remember it is "Pink" Hawley, not "Punk."

We have mixed in combat with La Crosse four times and thrice whaled them.

ANTI-BETTING FORCES GAIN?

BATON ROUGE, La., June 19.—After the close vote of 8 to 7 in the committee Wednesday night, which decided that the Locke anti-racing gambling bill should receive a favorable report, surprise was created here today when it was announced that no minority report would be made on the bill. It also was reported that several members of the committee who had voted against a favorable report will vote for the bill when it comes up for final passage.

THE BIG NEWS FIRST.

The recognized supremacy of The Tribune in its big tri-state field was again strikingly demonstrated in the handling of the news of the big national republican convention at Chicago yesterday, when Secretary of War William H. Taft was made the nominee of the party for the presidency of the United States.

Covering the entire news of the convention to the minute of going to press The Tribune was delivered to its readers at the usual time, conveying a forecast of the nomination of Mr. Taft before evening.

Before the big press had run off the edition, came the news of the nomination of Taft and of a stirring demonstration in the galleries for Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. This news was rushed into type and The Tribune was on the streets with the result of the vote and in the hands of two-thirds of the business men of La Crosse before any other La Crosse paper went to press.

The Tribune Extra was sought eagerly and the news of the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt's candidate had spread throughout the city before any other La Crosse newspaper got onto the street.

This was but another illustration of The Tribune's acknowledged leadership of western Wisconsin newspapers.

The biggest news in the Chicago convention yesterday outside of Taft was the Wisconsin delegation's plucky fight for the insertion of La Follette planks in the platform, their rejection and the ovation accorded the senator-candidate from Wisconsin. The Tribune contained detailed accounts of the fight of the Wisconsin delegation, handled by unprejudiced writers, and by its personal representative in convention hall, Mr. A. M. Brayton. The Tribune is the only La Crosse paper that has handled the Wisconsin news of this great event, and has given to La Follette and his delegation the attention they earned.

Merit wins its own reward in all things.

The people of La Crosse, western Wisconsin, eastern Minnesota and northern Iowa have long since ceased to expect to find the news, complete and unprejudiced, in any La Crosse newspaper but The Tribune.

12 HOURS LATE.

Other La Crosse newspapers discovered this morning—twelve hours late—that La Follette was the big affair in the convention yesterday, barring the Taft Steam Roller. The Tribune announced the big La Follette demonstration 24 hours ago, while it was news.

THEOROSE DORAVELT.

One of the amusing incidents of the convention which seems to have escaped the intent ears of the newspaper fraternity is related in the following from the Milwaukee Free Press:

"That there should be differing accounts of the one thing in the speech of Temporary Chairman Julius Caesar Burrows that aroused any enthusiasm is not remarkable. Ten thousand people heard what Mr. Burrows said, and probably 9,000 of them did not notice the tangle at all, while the other thousand would tell what happened in as many ways as it can be told. Just try out and see how many different ways there are for telling it.

"It must be a trial for an orator to work on and up to his great point and when he gets to it, and tries to get it out, have his tongue become unruly. At the same time it must not be presumed that Senator Burrows intended, or wished, to make mention of the name of the president the occasion for an excess of enthusiasm. Excesses of enthusiasm for Roosevelt are to be carefully avoided, if possible, until after the nomination of the other man.

"The temporary chairman got about six minutes into his speech when he came to the place where he was to say something about four years ago and how the republican party had placed in nomination 'Theorose Doravelt,' as the sharp-eyed representative of the Free Press caught it; and as it was probably said.

"The Chicago Record-Herald heard the senator say 'Theorose Doravelt,' and tried to correct himself by saying, 'Thor—uh, Rosadore—Theovelt—ahem—Theorose Doravelt.'

"Some other reporters did not notice anything curious, or forgot to relate it; but the Chicago Examiner's man thought the senator, when he came to the name of names, stopped for an instant, looked up from his manuscript, and made the break of pronouncing 'Theovelt Roosevelt,' very firmly—then catching himself he began to correct his blundersome effort, with 'I mean Theorose—' and the applause began.

"It will never be known how much of the applause was for the Michigan style of enunciation, and how much for the name itself. Of course there has to be a lot of cheering at a national convention; and the noise was scheduled to begin whenever the first mention of the name of Theodore Roosevelt came. The unfriendly Examiner declares that laughter was many times louder than the cheers, which of course nobody will believe for a minute."

Some of the Stalwart papers are trying to blame Senator Burrows for the frost tendered Taft, prior to his made-in-Washington nomination.

The Tribune's magnificent series of actual photographs of convention scenes attract the unbounded admiration of even our contemporaries.

Anyway La Follette was the biggest thing in the meeting outside of the Machine which named Taft.

STYLES IN BATHING SUITS.

(New York Sun.)

Hitherto nothing on this side of the water has been more amazing to the traveling American than the bathing suits worn at fashionable English and continental seaside resorts by pretty French, English and German women. A shapeless pair of knickerbockers and a long, loose jacket which comes down far enough to form a tiny skirt have been considered quite sufficient adornment.

Now all this is to be revolutionized. The Directorate bathing suit is to be introduced and the beaches this summer are to see visions of beauty such as they have never seen before. Indeed, so very elaborate are the costumes to be that if Ocean Grove tactics were in vogue over here bathing in them would be forbidden by law.

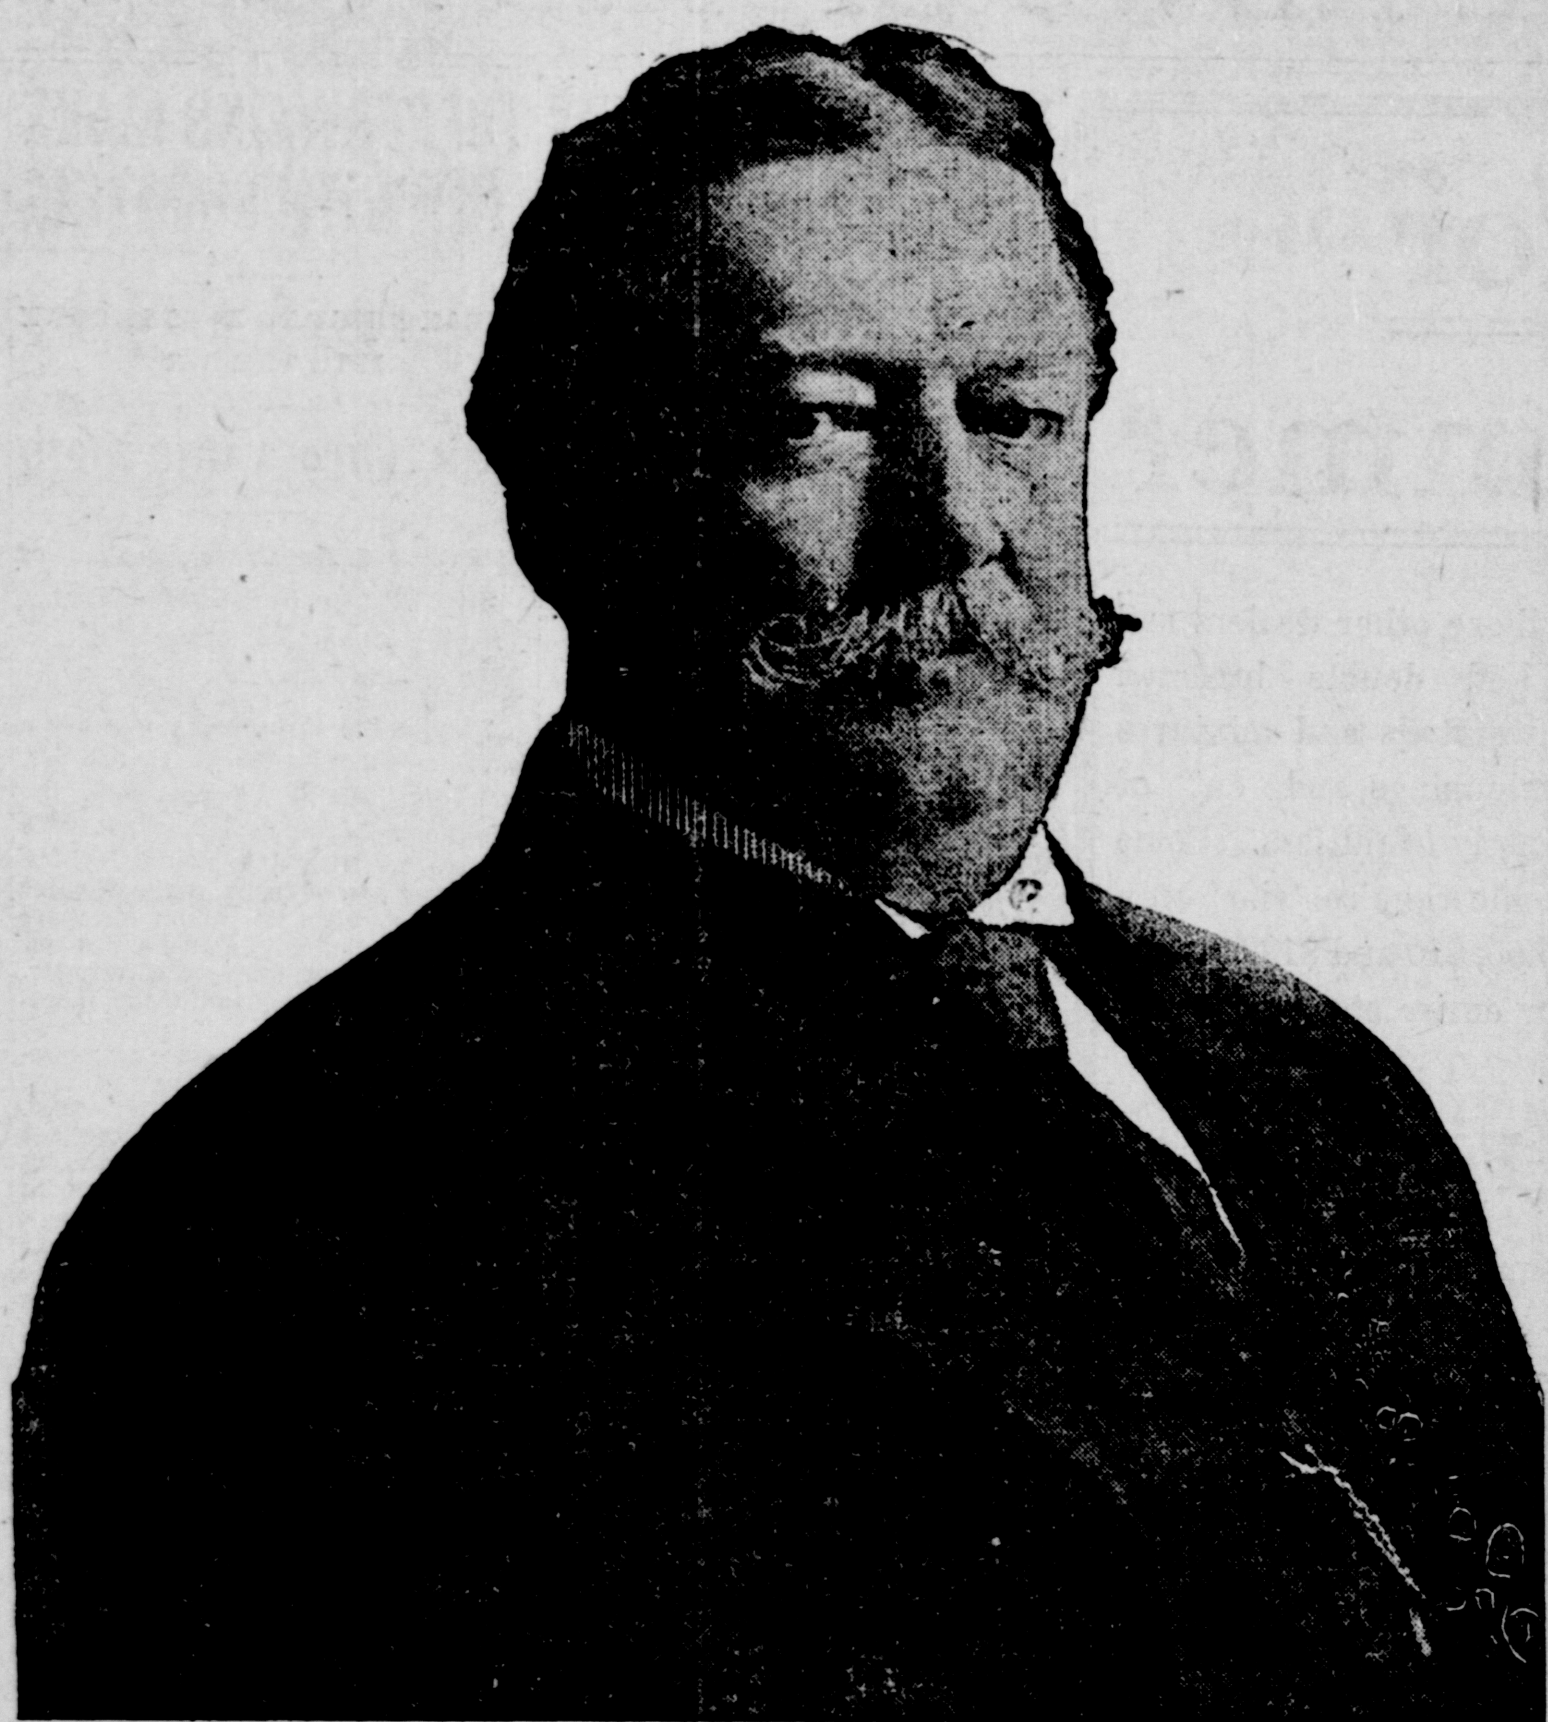

The new Directorate bathing dress follows the outline of the Directorate gown. The upper part fits closely to the figure, while the skirt slit up the sides is fastened down to knickerbockers of the same material by means of invisible buttons. Only delicate colors and thin materials are to be used. Cream, pink, blue and white silks and serges will be most popular.

The old style oilskin cap, the most unbecoming headgear in existence, is to give place to a picturesque poke bonnet carried out in waterproof silk and trimmed with ribbons and flowers in the same material. Parasols will be carried by those who wish to do the thing up in the proper way.

PARLIAMENTARY GROWTH

When the Russian duma refuses to vote an appropriation of $500,000 to lay the keels of four new naval vessels and we are told that the vote expresses a want of confidence, with the result that there will be several ministerial resignations, it begins to look as if Russia was making pretty rapid progress toward government by the people. This is the third time the duma has in a very practical way intimated to the government that the people hold the purse strings and the government has not resented the intimation by resorting to dissolution. Two decades ago such a thing would have been regarded as preposterous, not only in Russia by the nation itself, but for Russia by outside nations. Of course, it would be going too far to say that Russia has attained as yet true parliamentary government, but it is not going too far to say that she is rapidly approaching it.—Richmond News-Leader.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

Nominated for presidency of the United States by the Chicago national convention yesterday afternoon.

A TEST OF STATESMANSHIP

The spectacle of a good man striving bravely against adverse fates is classically affirmed to be grateful to the gods. It is especially so if he conquers in the end. Such is the basis of the tribute paid by the Grass Valley (California) correspondent of the Sacramento Union to Congressman Englebright of that district for his striking achievement in the late session.

The country at large was ignorant that this statesman had attained the goal of fame. He did not shine conspicuously by his eloquence, nor did the nation at large know that he had forced upon the statute books a creative measure of legislation. But his newspaper eulogist sheds light upon that darkness. Mr. Englebright went to congress inspired with the high ambition of securing a public building for the town of Grass Valley. "His task was a herculean one," the correspondent writes. It was the first time such a proposition had been made for so small a town, and the retrenchment sentiment was theoretically rampant. But he "struggled on through disappointments"—the struggle presumably consisting of voting as he was told till he got his slice of pork—and eventually triumphed. "Grass Valley is under a debt of lasting obligation," and Mr. Englebright has the fame of securing a public building for the smallest town even enriched by that class of governmental bounty.

How all the talk of tariffs, financial legislation and measures to check special privileges dwindles and shrink when we see the eternal gratitude of the people earned by the grab of a portion of the nation's funds for the architectural development of a California town with a population by the census of 1900 of 4,719.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

BRYAN AND THE COURTS.

(Milwaukee Journal.)

A number of readers of The Journal have asked that we reprint the resolution with respect to the courts which was a part of the Bryan platform of 1896. The whole paragraph follows:

"State Rights.—We denounce arbitrary interference by federal authorities in local affairs as a violation of the constitution of the United States and a crime against free institutions; and we especially object to government by injunction as a new and highly dangerous form of oppression, by which federal judges, in contempt of the laws of the states and rights of citizens become at once legislators, judges, and executioners; and we approve the bill passed at the last session of the United States senate, and now pending in the house of representatives, relative to contempt in federal courts and providing for trials by jury in certain cases of contempt.

EXTREME OF FASHION.

After all, the most disputing thing to contemplate in connection with the revived directorate craze is this violent reaction which sooner or later is bound to follow it. Those who can recall the "eel-skin" mania of the 'seventies will remember of course that it simply represented an exaggerated phase of the revolt against the previous supremacy of the crinoline.—London World.

His Ambition.

"What do you expect to be when you come of age, my little man?" asked the visitor.
"Twenty-one," was the little man's reply.—The Herald and Presbyter.

QUIPS AND CRANKS AND WANTON WILES

The Zoological Orchestra.
The turkey pilled the drumsticks while
The puppy took the bones;
The bullroger played an instrument
That gave the lowest tones.

The elephant could trumpet, and
The fiddler was a crab;
The Katy-did a song and dance
Upon a graveyard slab.

The inch-worm counted measures, while
The woodwind turned the leaves;
The quail, he had to whistle, for
Those mocking-birds are thieves.

The yellow-jacket's organ point
Was rather sharp and thin;
The kitten brought an article
To string the violin.

The cow tossed off a solo, for
No one could low so well;
Her horn was blew and tipped with brass;
She also rang the bell.

The bee could play upon the comb;
They wished he hadn't come,
For all the music that he knew
Was "Hum, Sweet Hum."
—Harvey Worthington Loomis in Success Magazine.

An Explanation.

Polk Miller of Richmond blew into the office of The Almanack like a fresh breeze from the south a few days ago, and was promptly asked, of course, for the latest dinky story in Virginia. He said it was about substituting a wild turkey for a tame turkey. One of his friends bought a turkey from old Uncle Ephraim and asked him, in making the purchase, if it was a tame turkey. "Oh, yais, sir; it's a tame turkey, o' right." "Now, Ephraim, are you sure it's a tame turkey?" "Oh, yais, sir; dere's no so't o' doubt 'bout dat, it's a tame turkey o' right." He consequently bought the turkey, and a day or two later when eating it he came across several shot. Later on when he met old Ephraim on the street she said: "Well, Ephraim, you told me that was a tame turkey, but I found some shot in it when I was eating it." "Oh, dat war a tame turkey o' right," was Uncle Ephraim's reiterated rejoinder; "but de fac' is, boss, I's gwine to tell yer in confidence dat dem ere shot was intended for me." —Advertisers' Almanack

Learning Honesty.

In a little town a few years ago there was a shiftless negro boy named Ransom Blake, who, after being caught in a number of petty delinquencies, was at last sentenced to a short term in the penitentiary, where he was sent to learn a trade. On the day of his return home he met a friendly white acquaintance, who asked:

"Well, what did they put you at in the prison, Ransome?"
"Dey started in to make an honest boy out'n me, sah."
"That's good, Ransome, and I hope they succeeded."
"Dey did, sah."

"And how did they teach you to be honest?"
"Dey done put me in the shoe shop, sah, nailin' pasteboard onto shoes fo' soles, sah." —Youth's Companion.

"Bromley, I hear you are going to start housekeeping?" "Yes, Darlin'ger." "What have you got to wards it?" "A wife."

PARTIES AND INDIVIDUALISM.

The Milwaukee Journal sees some queer conditions in politics of 1908, and relates the following as an evidence of disappearing party lines:

"The democratic readers of the Journal are asked to read thoughtfully the following paragraph which is taken from the republican platform:

"The present tendencies of the two parties are even more marked by inherent differences. The trend of democracy is toward socialism, while the republican party stands for a wise and regulated individualism. Socialism would give to each an equal right to take; republicanism would give to each an equal right to earn. Socialism would offer equality of possession, which would soon leave no one anything to possess. Republicanism would give equality of opportunity, which would assure to each his share of the constantly increasing store of possessions. In line with this tendency the democratic party of today believes in government ownership, while the republican party believes in government regulation. Ultimately democracy would have the people own the nation."
"There is some truth in this quotation, not much. We call attention to it to show how far afield we have gone, how hopelessly mixed up is politics. Is it any wonder party ties no longer bind? Think of the party of Hamilton being able to pretend that it represents individualism, and fixing upon the party of Jefferson the charge of centralization!"

"The fact is that both parties are thoroughly committed to the theory that every evil can be corrected by law."

"And still some people wonder that party lines are disappearing."

Why Bill Was Saved.

George Barnes, a noted evangelist, tells an amusing story of the attempted conversion of a hard fisted old mountaineer in Kentucky, who had resisted all missionary efforts directed towards him. "Bill" was extremely stubborn, and, in addition, possessed various other unlovable qualities that caused his neighbors much concern. A final attempt was made by a leading citizen to restore "Bill" to the faith of his childhood.

"Bill," said this well meaning man, "do you mean to tell me that you ain't teched by the story of the Savior that died to save your sins?" Whereupon "Bill" demanded aggressively:

"Do you try to tell me that Jesus Christ died to save men when he never seed me and he never knowed me?"

"Bill," responded the neighbor in disgust, "it wuz a durned sight easier for the Lord to die fur you because he never seed you than if he knowed you, as well as we all do." —Rochester Herald.

Stating It Pleasantly.

"Never call a man a liar."
"But suppose I catch some fellow in a confounded whopper?"

"Suppose you do. Don't be impetuous. Just look him in the eye and say pleasantly, 'You talk like a weather bureau.'" —Nashville American.

His Promise Fulfilled.

"You told me," she said with a pout, three months after their marriage, "that you intended to die a bachelor."
"To all intents and purposes," he sadly replied, "I have lived up to my declaration. I am known now merely as my wife's husband." —Judge's Library.

TO THE LAYMAN the making of a miller is exceedingly simple. Place a pair of overalls and a hickory jumper over a mass of ordinary clay, a straw hat over its cranium, dust the whole properly, and you have a man that you are willing to trust with your digestive apparatus and future happiness.

Not if we know it!

Of course old prints and "millers' daughters" have done much to make the miller a picturesque character, but ours is an age that demands results.

Only a thoroughly practical knowledge of farming, engineering and chemistry, coupled with integrity, hustle and brains has made possible the production — right here in La Crosse — of the most virile, cleanly and taste-satisfying spring wheat patent Flour milled anywhere—

hubbub. In the Roosevelt demonstration there was silence on the part of the Taft delegates, acquiescence but no encouragement on the part of the convention officials, and the excited cry of enthused citizens from the spectators. But the La Follette demonstration came without preconception or anticipation, and thrived and grew into pandemonium as the bellow of unconquered youth from the throats of the mental and physical giants sent out from the Wisconsin university into all the states, never losing in other commonwealths their loyalty to the progressive state of their nativity, rent the torrid atmosphere of the fuming auditorium until it seemed that the inflated walls of the coliseum must burst asunder under the strain.

La Follette and Roosevelt

That, separated by circumstance and misunderstanding, La Follette and Roosevelt are associated together in the minds of the average citizen, was demonstrated by the fact that in the midst of the La Follette cyclone, with nothing but the similarity of the two men to inspire it, a Roosevelt banner was unfurled from a vantage point in the galleries, and from that moment the demonstration was a dual one, cheers for the greatest governor and the greatest president the fruits of whose labors American citizens have ever enjoyed mingling in a glad testimonial to statesmen whom the people trust and love.

Worked Against Odds

Nor should it be overlooked that when Henry F. Cochems took the floor to hurl his championship of La Follette into the gritted teeth of a convention whose delegates had no love for the man, the great audience had been sitting for six solid hours in a fetid atmosphere; the temperature had passed the 100 mark, women had fainted, the doors had been closed to prevent actual suffocation by the massing throngs that still sought entrance. Already five long nominating speeches and three seconding speeches had been rendered, and that the audience was cooked and wearied into a frame of exasperation that was a challenge to further oratory was shown by the hazing of Governor Hanley and the scant courtesy shown other speakers. It was not that Cochems and McGee so far excelled other speakers in eloquence, although it was conceded in the convention last night that theirs was the most brilliant efforts of the day. The fact was that these staunch young men had a message to deliver. What could Hanley say of Fairbanks, what could be said of Knox or Cannon or Foraker, to arouse the enthusiasm of the multitude? But the men who preached the La Follette doctrine in that convention had more than "words, words, words" to offer. They did it well, the thousands who heard it said it was good, and it can truthfully be said that at the end no other expression of sentiment in the convention of 1908 equalled in spontaneity and emotional vigor that tendered the senator from Wisconsin, Robert Marion La Follette.

While the platform planks offered in the minority reported drafted in Wisconsin headquarters, signed only by the Wisconsin member of the resolutions committee, tendered on the convention floor by Congressman Cooper and defended by Herman L. Ekern and Senator Henry Lockney, were pre-decided to defeat, it was apparent from the start that they would not have been beaten had the galleries been voters in that convention. For each of the Wisconsin planks there were about 800 adverse votes, and about 100 favorable, and each negative vote of 800 was met with silence from the spectators and each affirmative vote of 100 was greeted with resounding cheers. The proponents on the floor of those planks made a great fight. Cooper, Ekern and Lockney were no children in the game they were playing. They failed, of course, to pass the planks, but they made Wisconsin loom up as a live state in that convention, a fact which was freely commented on in the cars and hotel lobbies last evening. There were many liberal republicans who freely characterized the convention as ultra-conservative, and declared that when the organization "stood pat" it held only a "four flush." Had it "drawn" the La Follette amendment card, they said, it would have "filled."

Esch Not a Candidate.

Last night Congressman John J. Esch, who is here at the Kaiser Hof, handed the Free Press correspondent a public announcement that he is not and will not be a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Stephenson. The announcement came as a surprise, although it had been felt that Mr. Esch's position of high importance and influence in the house made doubtful the wisdom of a change. However, many of his friends throughout the state were urging him to become a candidate, and the strength and popularity of the La Crosse statesman who has been identified with so much of the important legislation of the past six years would have made him a formidable candidate.

Kroner Meets Friend.

I met John Kroner at the Great Northern today and he related an interesting incident of his trip here. Two elderly and quite aristocratic gentlemen approached the spot where he was sitting in the Auditorium Annex. There remained but one vacant seat, and as both seemed fatigued he offered to vacate his chair. They protested, but finally accepted gratefully, and a page having seen the difficulty brought a third chair. They exchanged a few commonplaces, the old gentlemen seeming to desire to return the courtesy of Mr. Kroner by affability. Mr. Kroner confided to them that Wisconsin was his home. One of them said his was Nebraska.

NORTH SIDE SURE OF ITS CARNIVAL

SUFFICIENT MONEY IN SIGHT TO SWING THE DEAL

PRIVILEGES ARE NOW SOLD

With One Exception and Everything Is Ready for the Big Show Which Comes July 6

The big North Side Carnival is assured.

The show will open here July 6, as stated in a previous edition of The Tribune. Secretary Archie Gibson says that he has enough money in sight to swing the carnival. Nearly all of the privileges have been sold. S. J. Rodan has acquired the candy privilege and Tom Gibson the refreshment privilege. The lunch privilege has not been sold at yet, but it is expected that it will be taken soon. The reason for selling the whole lot at once was to be sure of a certain amount of money.

The carnival company has all of its dates filled at present. They will be at Black River Falls the week before coming here. The company has five big free shows and nine other attractions.

The arrangements for the street lighting have not been made, but if the electric lights can be secured at a reasonable cost they will be used.

The theatrical manager who is born under a lucky star is never borne under by one.

"Know anybody in Omaha?" he asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Kroner, mentioning the name of a large hardware dealer in that city with whom he enjoys business relations. Mr. Kroner did not know the head of the firm, (say his name was "Jones") but knew his manager.

"Why," said the gentleman from Omaha, "I am Mr. Jones." And the trio talked it over for an hour or two.

TOPPERWEINS MAKE HIT WITH SHOOTING

BREAK NUTS AND EGGS THROWN INTO THE AIR

DRAW PICTURES WITH SHOTS

Exhibition Given Under Auspices of the "Q" Gun Club Proves Very Attractive Affair

Despite the threatening weather a large crowd turned out to see Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Topperwein, the champions of the world, shoot with shot-guns, rifles and pistols. Mrs. Topperwein took part in the regular trap shoot with the other members of the "Q" Gun club, under whose auspices the shoot was given, but Mr. Topperwein did only exhibition shooting.

Mr. Topperwein first gave an example of revolver work, shooting both at objects in the air and stationary. Mrs. Topperwein then exhibited her skill at rifle shooting, breaking brickbats, marbles and walnuts in mid-air.

Among the other marvelous things done by the Topperweins was the tracing of an Indian head on a blank sheet of white paper by perforating it with bullets from a rifle. He also displayed marvelous skill in breaking five eggs that were thrown into the air at one time.

After the exhibition the members of the club did trap shooting, the following scores being made during the afternoon.

DEMOCRAT WILL BE TAFT'S SUCCESSOR

GENERAL LUKE E. WRIGHT WILL BE CHOSEN

CAPABLE MAN IS REQUIRED

Office Not Only Deals With Military
Branch, but Includes Insular Affairs

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—It will take a big man to fill Secretary Taft's place as head of the war department. President Roosevelt realizes this better than anyone else can and he believes that he made no mistake when he picked General Luke E. Wright of Tennessee for the place.

General Wright is a democrat and this fact has led to much comment on the political phases of his selection for the important post of Secretary of war. Entirely apart from politics however, there are strong reasons for the selection of General Wright and there can be no doubt he is admirably fitted to step into the shoes Mr. Taft will vacate.

It is not always understood that the war department has grown into, perhaps, the greatest of the executive departments. Since the era of expansion the responsibilities on the secretary of war have been tremendous. He is not merely the head of the war department proper, that is, of the military branch of the administration. He is the responsible secretary of insular affairs. The vexing questions of the Philippines are his to settle. He has to watch over the perplexing problems arising from intervention in Cuba. The conduct of the canal zone and of canal affairs generally imposes on his shoulders burdensome responsibilities. In reaching problems come before him by reason of the fact the war department engineers are entrusted with the carrying out of the river and harbor work.

An ordinary man would break down a few weeks under such a load and the best answer that the friends of Secretary Taft can make to his critics is to point to the way in which he has borne the huge burden of his office.

Now, General Wright is expected to take up the burden that Secretary Taft has carried long and successfully. It is a reasonable expectation. If General Wright lives up to his best record, that he will make an excellent secretary of war.

General Wright's home is in Memphis and he is a native of Tennessee. He was born in 1847. His father, Ahlbald Wright, was chief justice of Tennessee. His wife is a daughter of Admiral Raphael Semmes, of the confederate navy, whose record exploits in warring northern commerce from the ocean is familiar. General Wright served through the civil war as a confederate. He was in the artillery and his record was a honorable one. He was for eight years attorney general of his state.

He was as attorney general that he gained the title of "general." He did not rise to that rank in the service of the confederate army, as is apparent from the fact that he was but eighteen years old when the war ended. He studied law and has risen to the rank of Tennessee's leading lawyer. He gained prominence in 1878 by reason of his activity in the measures taken in Memphis and in that part of the country to overcome the yellow fever scourge.

President McKinley appointed General Wright a member of the Philippine commission March 16, 1900. Important duties devolved upon him. Incidental to the sickness of Governor Taft, the office of vice governor was created October 29, 1901, and General Wright was appointed to fill it. The subjects of legislation assigned to him as a member of the Philippine commission were internal improvements, franchises, militia police and the criminal code. He was also assigned to give attention to the civil code in connection with Governor Taft and Commissioner Ide. Each commissioner was expected to conduct investigations into the subjects assigned him. The most important bills that were prepared by General Wright and enacted by the Philippine commission were the penal code, the bill for the organization of the constabulary to replace the army in many small garrisons, the bill for the organization of the police force of Manila and the bill for the improvement of Manila harbor.

In the absence of Mr. Taft from the Philippines, General Wright was acting civil governor of the islands from November 4, 1901, to August 22, 1902. In what estimation Secretary Taft holds the man may be judged from the fact that on his return from the United States to the islands he alluded to General Wright in an address to the natives as a "man of affairs, a man of ability, a man of firmness, of the tact and of the sweet solitary nature of Governor Wright." This period was a critical and troubled one but General Wright met all crises in a fashion that met the approval of Secretary Taft and President Roosevelt in his address at Hartford August 22, 1902, commended him among other officials of the Philippines.

General Wright visited the United States in the winter of 1902 and -903 and delivered an address at Canton on President McKinley's birthday, January 29, 1903. He was nominated for civil governor of the Philippines January 1, 1904. He served as governor until March 31, 1906, when he was sent to Japan as ambassador. He served for a number of months in that capacity and then at his own instance returned to private life.

Necessarily, not much attention has been paid in this country to the work of General Wright in the Philippines. He was in the island five years. It was a tempestuous period, a formative stage of American occupation. General Wright insists from the first that what the islands needed was a commercial, industrial and agricultural regeneration. He connected the government of the islands in the terrible cholera scourge of the spring of 1903. When he departed from the Philippines for Japan he was given many tributes of high regard. It was said of him at that time by his admirers in Manila that while in the Philippines he had been "the asps of stop talking and go to work."

As ambassador to Tokio, General Wright was placed in a most difficult and delicate position. He was the representative of this country in Japan in those momentous days following the school trouble in San Francisco when war loomed up ominously. It is true that the idea of war was scouted in many quarters in this country. How near to war the country was, is best known by President Roosevelt, Secretary Root and General Wright. It was a highly critical time. General Wright by his tact, firmness and ability did much to smooth things over. It is admitted everywhere by those familiar with the fact that Wright did wonderful work in Tokio at that time. It met the approval of the president and Secretary Root and it raised General Wright still higher in the estimation of these men and of Secretary Taft. Mr. Taft formed a close friendship and acquaintance

UMPIRE BUSH SIGNS WITH RELIEF AT PROSPECT

ASKED ABOUT LOCAL FANS

But When Told They Were a Peaceable Lot When treated Square He Felt Satisfied

The Freeport baseball team accompanied by Umpire Bush arrived last evening and are quartered at the Cameron house. One of the first questions asked by his highness the ump was what the sentiment of local fans was toward the umpire. On being told that the fans in La Crosse have always been on friendly terms with the umpire and have always seen fair play, he sighed in relief and stated that he hoped the escapade at Rockford would not be repeated.

Pink and his bunch arrived yesterday morning and appeared none the worse for their terrible encounters on the road. The hard luck story was prevalent in the entire team.

This afternoon Jones or Flynn will be in the box for La Crosse while Harnes will be stationed behind the bat. Rouse has been slated for the Pretzels with Stark at home plate. Hastings has been retained by Manger Pink Hawley and will be kept in the left garden until after the injuries of Graves are mended and then he will probably be traded to some other team as there is now a good supply of fielders with the Colts.

Ex-Manager Shugart of the Rockford Reds has been released by Manager Hutton and was at once taken by Fond du Lac. Shugart has been stationed at the second sack and his going with Fondy will probably mean that Vogt will be released although nothing authentic has been received regarding the change.

Robinson still remains with the Colts. He will be kept on the bench for a short time as a utility man in case of any further injury to any of the players.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT SATISFIED

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Roosevelt upon hearing the announcement of Sherman's nomination sent him the following:

"Accept my hearty congratulations and my earnest good wishes for the success of the ticket of Taft and Sherman."

Taft also sent a congratulatory message. He announced on leaving the White house that his resignation as secretary of war becomes effective June 30. The text of Taft's telegram was:

"I sincerely and cordially congratulate you on your nomination as vice president and welcome you as a colleague in the contest and look forward with confidence to the result of the joint struggle. Will you meet me in Cincinnati tomorrow to confer on matters of importance?" One of the matters the two candidates will take up will be the choice of campaign manager.

REHEARSAL TO BE HELD THIS EVENING

A general rehearsal of the male reception chorus of the Saengerfest will be held at Germania hall tonight, which will be participated in by the Liederkranz, the Frohsinn and Harmonia societies. Sunday at 1:30 the mixed chorus will rehearse with orchestral accompaniment.

General Director Kelbe writes Secretary Utermoehl today that he has finished rehearsing over half of the societies and finds them well drilled and in excellent shape, assuring the success of the saengerfest concerts.

MRS. OSBORNE AT REST

The last tributes to the late Mrs. W. L. Osborne were held this afternoon from the residence, 422 West avenue south. Rev. Vance conducted the services and interment took place at the Oak Grove cemetery. Mrs. Osborne died in Chicago and the body arrived from that city this morning.

LOCAL DEMOCRATS "TICKLED T' DEATH"

liberal republicans in states like Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana, like Roosevelt did, or La Follette might. Furthermore I think that he won't get any more of the negro vote than Roosevelt. This vote will have an important bearing on the final result of several of the eastern states, especially New York. "It is further my opinion that a good many republicans think that a step from a Roosevelt administration to a Taft administration is a step both backwards and downwards. At the next democratic convention, if, as most people believe, and of which I feel sure, Bryan is nominated, there will be enough republican votes for him in the coming election to elect him over Taft."

Bryan's Popularity Growing
"Furthermore I think that it has been proven during the years 1896, when the Bryan democracy first made its appearance as a political organization, that the people have come to believe, every year more so, that the Bryan idea is correct. We need only to note the popularity of Roosevelt's administration and note further on what principles he has gained this popularity and any man, woman or child who has followed him will know without argument that every point on which he was made popular was gained through ideas that had their root and foundation in principles of the democratic platform of 1896. They have been studied out carefully and developed with skill by the republicans with Roosevelt in national affairs and such men as Cummins of Iowa and La Follette of Wisconsin in state affairs."

"In short I believe that Bryan ought to be elected and that the consensus of the American voters will prove my expectation correct. "These are some of the reasons as figured out by anyone interested in politics but as a matter of fact the whole game is one of sentiment. Take a party platform, for instance, how many people do you think read it? Not any in comparison to the ones who don't. They pick up the paper, read the articles on how the affairs are shaping themselves, but when they come to some lengthy and deep discussion of a platform or one of the planks in the platform they 'pass it up.' The sentiment has been gradually growing for Bryan and it is about due to crop out with enough vim to place him in the presidential chair."

Sullivan Predicts Success.

CHICAGO, June 19.—"If we act wisely at Denver, and I feel confident we will, there is no reason why we should not win this presidential election," said Roger C. Sullivan. "The republicans have made mistakes enough in the last few days to give us a lead we have no right to lose."

Roger Sullivan says the "steam roller" and the platform will kill the republicans' chance at the polls.

La Follette Interests Bryan.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 19.—Bryan today wrote for the Commoner his views of the republican platform, but refused to make them public, or express an opinion on Taft's nomination. He expressed satisfaction, however, over the fact the republicans had been forced to go on record as opposing the election of senators by direct vote.

CAPTAIN HOBSON HERE TOMORROW

Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero, statesman and orator of a great navy and a supreme America, will arrive in La Crosse tomorrow morning to deliver his address on "Our Navy" at the fair grounds. Capt. Hobson is the best informed man in the country on naval affairs. His lecture tomorrow will review the reasons for a more powerful navy, the danger contingent upon complications in the orient, and give his conclusions as to the certainty of the "yellow peril," and the "inevitable consequence of war between Japan and this country."

Aside from the deep interest that attaches to Capt. Hobson's personality and history, he is a most convincing and pleasing platform speaker and all should hear his exposition of the navies of the past and present, the water paths of commerce and the probable outcome of future naval contests.

A splendid number on tomorrow's program is Ruthver McDonald, the great Canadian baritone, who will appear afternoon and evening.

A divorce suit is merely the outcome of suitors being unsuited.

TAFT NOMINATION MADE UNANIMOUS

became hoarse and he could be heard wild outburst. Charles P. Taft, brother of the choice of the convention, was embraced and his hand was squeezed so that he'll remember it for days. He was nearly carried off his feet and to the first step of the platform, but good naturedly managed to extricate himself from the grasp of his friends.

The band stationed at the north end of the great building started up "The Star Spangled Banner." Many in the crowd joined in singing the national anthem, and then filed slowly out of the building while the band played "Dixie."

The climax had been reached after a nerve racking, continuous session lasting nearly eight hours. In just seven minutes after the vote for Mr. Taft was announced the most important session of the fourteenth convention of the republican party was over.

The delegates were ready as soon as they took their seats at noon to nominate Taft without further ado, but there were the nominating speeches to be endured. They endured them with poor grace. The speeches were all too long to please and frequently the speakers were hooted and even hissed.

Crowd for "Bob."

Wisconsin's presentation of the name of Robert M. La Follette as its choice for president of the United States was accorded an ovation such as was given to no other candidate, and to no other state.

The name of La Follette was cheered by the people in the galleries more generally than that of any candidate.

The La Follette demonstration differed from that for Taft in that it appeared to be entirely spontaneous. It was a demonstration among the spectators, in which but few of the delegates outside of Wisconsin participated, while that for Mr. Taft was participated in by something over 700 delegates who were instructed for him and who voted for him on the roll call.

Cheer 20 Minutes.

The La Follette ovation would have been a record breaker had it occurred previously to the attempted stampede for Roosevelt on Wednesday. For more than 20 minutes the spectators in the gallery yelled their approval of the little man from Wisconsin. For 20 minutes the Wisconsin delegation stood upon chairs and waved banners, while Dick White of Milwaukee carried Robert La Follette, Jr., on his shoulders up and down the aisles of the convention hall.

The familiar "U Rah Rah, Wisconsin," was heard in every quarter of the hall. Several efforts were made to stem the ovation, but without avail.

Police Get Busy.

The police attempted to force the Wisconsin delegation to desist, and one policeman approached National Committeeman Alfred T. Rogers and ordered him to get down off his chair to stop the cheering. This effort, too, was without avail. When the cheering had been in progress about twenty minutes, some one secured a large American flag and pinned lithographs of President Roosevelt to it and waved it from the gallery in an effort to turn the La Follette demonstration into one for Roosevelt.

When the Wisconsin delegation saw the Roosevelt flag, they resumed their seats. The character of the demonstration at once changed and the attention of the crowd was diverted to a possibility of stampeding the convention for Roosevelt, but the crowd apparently had spent its Roosevelt enthusiasm on Wednesday, for within two minutes after the presentation of the Roosevelt banners, the demonstration ceased and the roll call began.

Cochens Gets a Hearing.

When Henry F. Cochems of Milwaukee was introduced to the convention, the noise and disturbance which had been so pronounced during the latter part of the speech delivered by the man who had directly preceded him, ceased. Mr. Cochems could be heard throughout the major portion of the great hall, and when the crowd learned that he had something to say out of the ordinary run of nominating speeches, he was given splendid attention. He was frequently interrupted by cries of "Good." "Go ahead." "We're for him."

Before his speech was more than two-thirds completed, Mr. Cochems

ASKS PAPERS TO OMIT BETTING

NEW YORK, June 19.—P. J. Dwyer, president of the Brooklyn Jockey club, made an unusual request of the press Wednesday afternoon. He sent Captain Thornhill of the Pinkerton force into the press stand to ask the newspaper men to stop printing odds of the charts published daily. The news spread around quickly and caused a sensation among both the layers and the players.

The effect of omitting prices on the charts would be widespread. It would knock out all future betting, kill off the thousands of handbooks throughout the city and tend to cripple the poolroom business, for thousands of bets are paid off daily on the official odds as quoted in the newspapers.

Mr. Dwyer's reason for the request is to show that the racing association is striving to the best of its ability to keep within the law. Earlier in the day he sent a similar request to members of "Mets" and they respected it to such an extent that betting was lighter than on any day since the anti-betting law went into effect.

The case of Frank Rommel, charged with conducting a saloon in West Salem without a license, has been adjourned until Monday, the 29th.

TAFT AND SHERMAN TO SEEK VICTORY

swear every draft that has been made on his ability, for the good republic and of all its people.

"In the closing hours of this convention there yet remains a duty to perform, that is to nominate a candidate for vice president—a running mate for Taft."

Compliments Sherman

"I take great pleasure in saying that during 16 years in the house of representatives, New York's favorite, in council, and committee, always has been of great strength, ability and courage and true to his convictions, to the party and to the republic."

"I believe the great middle west, recognizing the importance of the Empire state, should be for its candidate, not because he comes from the state of New York, but because he is big enough, is patriotic enough and wise enough to fill the office of first place in importance, instead of the second place. 'By their fruits ye shall know them'—Laughter—I'm not chaplain, you know, but that is applicable anyway. W. H. Taft and J. S. Sherman will fill the measure and I believe they will be president and vice president for the coming four years. Good bye."

"Joe's" Additions.

Cannon came on the platform in the attire he always wears in hot weather, the sleeves of an alpaca coat stuck into old fashioned cuffs. He sussed his neck and head in ice water while the ovation raged, and spat out over the platform.

After the applause subsided following Cannon's speech, Governor Wilson, of Kentucky, jumped on a chair and seconded the nomination in a few words.

Olmead of Pennsylvania, H. C. Evans of Tennessee, and Slemph of Virginia also seconded Sherman's nomination.

When Massachusetts was reached in the call of states, Chairman Lodge called F. A. Dennison, of Illinois, a negro, to preside over the convention in order that he might be free to present Curtis Guild, of Massachusetts, for the vice presidency.

When Michigan was called, Judge Charles S. Osborn was recognized, and said the nominee must be "big enough to be president." He declared the best man for second place was Curtis Guild, Jr., who he declared, represented the culture and strength of the extreme east. Thomas N. McCarter was recognized when New Jersey was called, and nominated former Governor George Franklin Murphy of that state.

Judge Henry Skinner of North Carolina also seconded the nomination of Sherman, as did Delegate Dennis Flynn of Oklahoma. Representative Olmead then put Pennsylvania on the Sherman bandwagon, saying the Keystone state proposed to give a 500,000 majority for Taft and Sherman.

Tennessee's sentiments in behalf of Sherman were expressed by H. Clay Evans.

The call of the states was then made for the vote for vice presidential candidates. The balloting resulted as follows:

Arkansas, Sherman 18; California, Sherman 20; Colorado, Sherman 9; Murphy 1; Connecticut, Murphy 14; Delaware, Sherman 6; Florida, Sherman 10; Georgia, Sherman 26; Idaho, Sherman 6; Illinois, Sherman 51, Murphy 3; Indiana, Murphy 4, Sherman 26; Iowa, Murphy 4, Sherman 15; Kansas, Murphy 1, Sherman 19; Kentucky, Sherman 26; Maine, Sherman 9, Guild 3; Maryland, Sherman 16; Massachusetts, Guild 32; Michigan, Guild 8, Sherman 22; Minnesota, Sherman 22; Ohio, Murphy 10, Guild 10, Sherman 26; Oklahoma, Sherman 14; Oregon, Sherman 8; Pennsylvania, Murphy 8, Sherman 60; Rhode Island, Sherman 8; South Carolina, Sherman 17, Murphy 1; South Dakota, Sherman 8; Tennessee, Sherman 24; Texas, Sherman 36; Utah, Sherman 6; Vermont, Sherman 8; Virginia, Sherman 24; Washington, Sherman 10; West Virginia, Sherman 13, Fairbanks 1; Wyoming, Sherman 6; Alaska, Sherman 6; Arizona, Sherman 2; District of Columbia, Sherman 2; Hawaii, Sherman 2; New Mexico, Sherman 2; Philippines, Sherman 2; Porto Rico, Sherman 2; Louisiana, Sherman 15, Guild 3; Murphy 2; Wisconsin, Sherman 4, Guild 9, Murphy 2; Sheldon of Nebraska 10 (one absent); Nebraska, Sherman 12, Guild 4; Mississippi, Sherman 19, Murphy 1; Missouri, Sherman 36; Montana, Sherman 6; Nevada, Sherman 6; New Hampshire, Sherman 8; New Jersey, Murphy 24; New York, Sherman 78.

The official vote was: Fairbanks, 1; Sheldon, of Nebraska, 1; Guild, of Massachusetts, 75; Murphy, of New Jersey, 7; Sherman, of New York, 816.

This was then made unanimous. Before the vote was announced Lodge announced that the national committee would meet immediately after the convention adjourned.

When the announcement was finally made New York jumped on their feet with flags waving and started cheering. Lodge secured order and asked, "Shall the nomination of Mr. Sherman be made unanimous?" Senator Murray Crane moved Sherman be made the unanimous choice of the convention, which was seconded by Gov. Fort of New Jersey, and carried with a cheer.

The motion was then offered by Senator Gallinger, New Hampshire, that Lodge and Burrows be appointed a committee to notify the president and vice president. Lodge announced he wouldn't be able to serve and suggested General Warner, Missouri, in his place. The motion carried without opposition. General Felix Agnus, Baltimore, then moved the secretary of the convention publish the usual record of the convention, which was carried.

On motion of Gov. Willson of Kentucky, the thanks of the convention were tendered to F. W. Upham and the local committee for their work. At 11:47 Judson Lyons, Georgia, moved the convention adjourn sine die. Amid cheers and with the band playing the "Star Spangled Banner" the delegates filed out of the hall.

BLOOD POISON HUMILIATING-VILE-DESTRUCTIVE

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, which is quickly followed by a red rash on the skin, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, ulcerated mouth and throat, and often copper colored spots on different parts of the body. As the blood becomes more fully contaminated with the poison, pustular eruptions and sores break out on the flesh, and in extreme cases the nerves and bones are attacked and the finger nails drop off. Then the sufferers find themselves diseased from head to foot with this humiliating, vile and destructive poison. No other disease is so highly contagious; many an innocent person has been inoculated by handling the clothing or using the toilet articles of an infected person. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the circulation, and neutralizing and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, tones up the system, and completely and permanently cures this disease. S. S. S. has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison. If you are suffering with this debasing and destructive disease begin the use of S. S. S. and get the poison out of your blood before it permanently wrecks your health. We have a home treatment book on the disease which we will send free to all who wish it, and in addition our physicians will give without charge any medical advice needed. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

MILWAUKEE STILL OUSTING THE DIVES

COUNCIL FINDS 27 MORE BAD SALOONS IN CITY

WILL REPORT TOMORROW

It is Considered Probable That Several More Well Known Resorts Will be Without License Saturday

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 19.—Has the council prepared an addition to Chief Jansen's blacklist containing over twenty saloons not on that list whose licenses will not be renewed?

This is a question which is proving a source of great anxiety to many and inquiries among some of the aldermen shows that they have grounds for their fears. This new addition is outside of the list of sixty-eight dance hall keepers who appeared before the license committee of which it is understood about twenty-seven will be out of business after July 6.

Alderman Sebastian Walter and I. H. Tarrant of the license committee have been making a quiet investigation and have visited several places whose names did not appear on the blacklist and about which complaints had been made. Last night Alderman Walter admitted that there had been additions to the blacklist but refused to divulge names before the meeting of the committee tomorrow. "There have been several additions," said Chairman Walter, "and these will be brought before the license committee Friday morning. The complete revised list will then be recommended to the common council without a hearing from the proprietors and passed it is expected."

From authentic sources, it has been learned that the additions include a well known East Water street cafe in the vicinity of the city hall, a saloon and restaurant on Johnson street; a third street cafe near Grand avenue, and a well known resort for boxers on East Water street.

Besides these it is said that there are five others who will come under the ban.

SHOOTS DOCTOR WHO FAILED TO CURE

DR. F. J. STIRN OF MILWAUKEE MAY DIE

ANGRY LABORER IS ASSAILANT

Anton Kriz, a Bohemian, Went After the Life of the Doctor Who Sent Bill Without Cure

MILWAUKEE, June 19.—Angered because of the alleged failure of Dr. Frank J. Stirn of Cudahy to cure him of an ailment for which he was being treated, Anton Kriz, a Bohemian laborer, shot and seriously injured the physician in his office.

Dr. Stirn was brought to Trinity hospital, Milwaukee. Whether he will recover is uncertain. Kriz is a prisoner at the county jail and admits his guilt.

At about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon Kriz went to the office of Dr. Stirn, which is on the second floor of the Vogt building, Packard avenue and Barnard street, Cudahy. He walked into the waiting room, holding in his hand a revolver concealed by a handkerchief.

No Hello For Him.

Dr. Stirn was writing in his private office.

"Hello, Tony," he said.

"I got no hello for you," was the reply, as Kriz pulled the handkerchief off the revolver.

Dr. Stirn started to close the door, but before he could do so Kriz had fired three shots, two of which took effect. One struck Dr. Stirn in the left lung and remaining in the body. Dr. J. P. Taugher, who is attending Dr. Stirn, feared to probe for the bullet because of the patient's weakness, and for the same reason no X-ray examination was made. An effort will be made to locate the bullet in this way as soon as Dr. Stirn is able to endure the ordeal.

One of the bullets struck the left thumb near the tip, passing through the thumb at an angle. The third was buried in the floor of the private office.

Pursued by Mayor Kleiender.

As soon as Kriz fired the shots he left the building and was walking down the street when he was met by Mayor Peter Kleiender, who had heard the shots in his butcher shop.

PARENTS FIGHTING FOR THE CHILDREN

RACINE, Wis., June 19.—A bitter fight is on in the county court for the possession of two children. The action is brought by William Reed of Pennsylvania, against Myrtle Reed-Jensen. Mrs. Reed left her husband and subsequently corresponded with Chris Jensen of North Dakota, through a matrimonial bureau. Jensen sent her money, she went to North Dakota and married him. The testimony indicated that she did not inform Jensen of her former marriage, or the existence of two daughters. The Jensons came to Racine county. The mother sent for the children and they lived with her. Mr. Reed came west and began the battle to regain the two children. The parties make grave charges against the other. The sheriff has charge of the children.

Horsemen Plan to Bring Fast Steppers to La Crosse from Surrounding Towns for Meet

A program for the celebration of the Fourth of July has been about completed by the committee in charge and from the recent indications it will eclipse all previous like events. The affair is being given by the Baseball association and a number of citizens, and everything is being done to make it a success.

In the morning the program will be carried out at the League park, when the Green Bay baseball team will meet the locals. In the afternoon the fair grounds will be the chief interest and a number of races are planned. Three horse races are on the program, the first being the 2:25 pace, a trotting race and running race. Following the horse races, which will be run in heats, automobile, motor and other races will be featured. Green Bay will meet the La Crosse team again in the afternoon and will be followed by a basket picnic in Myrick park.

In the evening a water carnival will be held and other amusements planned. A number of excursions will be run to the city on the river and from surrounding towns. Lansing has already promised to send a large delegation.

Wise Cinderella—I will cause diamonds and rubies to fall from your lips every time you speak, my child," said the good fairy, "and then I shall send you a prince." "What?" gasped Cinderella. "And have all the papers say that I was weak enough to fall into the hands of a fortune hunter? Nay, nay, kind fairy, send me a 'ham' actor or a handsome chauffeur, but don't send me a prince."

MISS LILLIAN ANDERSON GRADUATES WITH HONORS

Miss Lillian Anderson of this city, the charming daughter of Mr. Oscar Anderson, graduated on June 16th from the conservatory of music of St. Mary's, Notre Dame, Ind., with honors and glory showered upon her perhaps unequalled in the history of that famous old institution.

Miss Anderson's performance at the graduation exercises the 16th, and at the fifty-third annual commencement the 18th was pleasing evidence of her remarkable musical culture. Her performance was spoken of by Prof. Seidel, the noted musical genius of the Thomas orchestra, as splendid, and eclipsing in its perfection the work of many noted professionals he had heard. Miss Anderson finishes her musical education a past master in her chosen art, and completes a six years' course at Notre Dame to return home, unless it be decided that she take a post graduate course in Europe.

Miss Anderson made her best impression in a rendition of Rubinstein's Staccato Caprice. It was this piece which drew the complimentary comment from Prof. Seidel. She also played Chopin's No. 25, by Mendelssohn and first piano in a flat by Moszkowski, in which she was accompanied by Dorothy Kempel, on the second piano by Misses M. Hubinger and Marion Barger, and on the violin by Prof. R. Seidel. She played the accompaniment for Miss L. Holden in Beach's Fairy Lullaby. In the commencement program two evenings later Miss Anderson rendered Chopin's Polonaise in A flat, together with Miss Marion Barger, and also played second piano with Miss Barger in Liszt's Galop, Chromatique. The young lady was also on the program as accompanist in a vocal duet from "La Gioconda."

Miss Anderson was showered with congratulations for her splendid performance and was the recipient of many beautiful presents. She received a handsome gold medal from the conservatory, accompanying her diploma.

Misses Kathleen Thornbury and Nora Nelson of this city attended the graduation at Notre Dame as the guest of Mr. Anderson and his daughter, and the party reached home this morning.

ANDREAS PAGE WEDDING SOLEMNIZED YESTERDAY

The marriage of Miss Lulu Belle Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Page, 404 North Fifteenth street, to Mr. Reuben M. O. Andreas, son of Rev. Andreas of the Mormon Coulee German M. E. church, took place yesterday afternoon in the First M. E. church, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. James W. Irish.

About two hundred guests were bidden to the ceremony, which was at 4 o'clock. The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion, green and white being the color scheme. The altar rail was hidden in a mass of syringas and ferns and banks of greenery made the chancel and choir loft a bower of beauty. The chandeliers were gracefully draped in ferns, and the whole effect of the church was of sylvan charm.

Miss Helen Lavake, at the organ, played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the guests were assembling, and as the bridal party made their appearance, "O, Promise Me" was beautifully sung by Miss Mabel Forkner of Evanston, Ill. Mr. Andreas and his best man, Mr. Reuben Andreas, accompanied by Mr. Irish, entered from the rear of the church and met the bride party as they came down the main aisle. The six bridesmaids, the Misses Pearl Loveland, Daisy Rice, Meta Maseuger, Agnes Lang, Edith Cutting and Maud Loveland led the procession and all were gowned in dainty white, carrying shower bouquets of pink roses. Following them was Miss Bess Cutting, the maid of honor, who wore a gown of white Persian lawn over pink and carried pink roses. Then came the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and preceded by the little flower girl, Bessie Richardson, who strewn roses in her path. Miss Page looked very lovely in a gown of cream pearl de cline, with trimmings of baby Irish lace and insertion. In her hair was a wreath of smilax and tiny white buds. The impressive ring service was used and after the vows were spoken, Miss Forkner completed the song "O, Promise Me," as the bridal party left the church. At the Page residence a wedding dinner was served to the relatives, out of town guests, and the bridal party, covers being placed for sixty, and in the evening a reception was held, about 175 guests calling during the reception hours.

The house was artistically decorated, the parlor where the bride and groom received, being in white and green, the same colors that were used at the church. In one corner of the room was a bower of ferns and suspended from the center was a large wedding bell, under which Mr. and Mrs. Andreas stood to welcome their friends and receive their heartfelt congratulations. In the living room, pink and green were effectively used, streamers radiating from the center of the ceiling to the different corners of the room.

The young people left on the 9:30 train for the east for a short wedding tour. Mrs. Andreas' going away gown was a handsome suit of pale gray chiffon panama with lace waist, and hat and gloves to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Andreas will return to La Crosse for a short visit, before going to their new home in Minneapolis.

About forty-five out of town guests were present for the wedding, nearly all relatives, and an interesting feature of the day was the presence of both the grandmothers of the bride and groom. The wedding gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Andreas were many and beautiful, showing the high esteem and affection in which they are held.

THE SPEECH THAT FIRED THE GALLERY

MR. M'GEE'S SECOND TO THE LA FOLLETTE NOMINATION

DEMONSTRATION OUTDID TAFT

Galleries Went Wild With Enthusiasm for "Bob" on Same Scale Roosevelt Was Applauded

CHICAGO, June 19.—(Special).—One of the most remarkable features of the national convention yesterday—in fact the feature outside the nomination of Wm. H. Taft, was the demonstration for Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin when that gentleman's candidacy was seconded in a ringing speech by G. A. A. McGee.

At 4:18 G. A. A. McGee, of Wisconsin, in seconding La Follette's nomination, worked the galleries to the highest pitch with a red hot eulogy of La Follette. From the crowded galleries went up a mighty shout, joined in by hundreds of women. It was both unlooked for and spontaneous, and before it had gone far some one on the stage swung a Roosevelt banner aloft. The crowd quickly caught on, and from the south end came the cry, "Four, four, four years more." It was a trying situation for the Taft men. The spectators refused to be still and as in the case of the big Roosevelt demonstration of the day before the great demonstration had to run its course. Taft received no such ovation at any time since the opening of the convention, and while most of the delegates sat in their seats unmoved—the told-what-to-do-in-advance machine cogs they were—the great throngs in the galleries set up a deafening roar for "Little Bob" La Follette. The Wisconsin delegation was wild with joy and excitement, and it was only when Chairman Lodge in desperation ordered a roll call of the states through a huge megaphone that there was any abatement of the pandemonium. The demonstration turned toward Roosevelt when a Roosevelt banner was displayed and the cries of "La Follette" and "Teddy" were mingled.

McGee's Speech.
The speech of Mr. McGee, which brought forth the demonstration, follows:
Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention:

Every age and generation has its problems. These problems must be met when and as they arise. If the republican party, now grown glorious in fifty years of national service and national achievement, is to meet and solve the burning issues of the hour, it must do so here and now, not only by platform professions and declarations, but by nominating as its standard bearer that man who stands pre-eminent among the statesmen of his day, the avowed advocate and recognized champion of the principles of progressive republicanism to which this convention stands pledged.

In Lincoln's day the paramount issue was the union, and human freedom or human slavery. Today the paramount issue is our republic, the life of our democratic institutions and industrial freedom or industrial slavery.

In each critical period of our nation's history there has come to the front a leader signally equipped for the performance of his task, both by experience and endowment. From the primeval forests of Virginia came the young surveyor who led the Colonial troops to victory over the hosts of England that he might proclaim to the world that the evolution of government had culminated in America. From the log cabin of Kentucky came that honest, rugged American who rejuvenated the world; cemented the Union; stamped out the accursed institution of slavery and consecrated anew the cause of humanity. From the plains of the West, the slope of San Juan Hill and the State House at Albany came that prince of patriots—Theodore Roosevelt—who so unhesitatingly lifted the burden from the shoulders of our martyred McKinley, and who by reason of his unparalleled fidelity and ability in the discharge of the trust imposed, is now recognized as the greatest and most respected citizen of the world. From the Old Badger state comes "Little Bob," that intellectual giant and eminent statesman, who with the presence of genius, with the devotion, the courage and patriotism of a Lincoln, with an ability and unswerving purpose of his own, was the first to champion those principles which this convention has adopted, which the leader of our party—the president of our country—has sounded in his patriotic and fearless messages to Congress: as the battle-cry of our republic, the slogan of our nation.

What a state has done, the nation may do. The people of the state of Wisconsin, discussing in all its hideous nakedness the baneful, arbitrary and tyrannical power of commercial greed, which through the medium of bribery, intrigue and corruption, was controlling and manipulating her legislative and other governmental agencies, turned in her battle for emancipation to Robert M. La Follette, whose services have always freely and without stint been given in the cause of his beloved state and nation. With a clearness of mental vision, soundness of judgment and definiteness of purpose, he realized that no reform adequate to cope with the existing abuses could possibly avail until the machinery of government was returned to the hands of the people. Without hesitation he struck at the very root of the evil and in one of the most memorable and patriotic political battles ever waged in an American commonwealth, he secured the passage of the primary election law, giving every man equal opportunity for elective office. Immediately he secured passage of the civil service law, giving every man equal opportunity for appointive office. Thus, on the one hand, he restored the control of the government to the people, and wiped out the political machine; and on the other hand, he eliminated the spoils system existing through the control and distribution of political patronage.

Next, Mr. La Follette applied himself to the great economic and political task of readjusting the relationship between the people and the special interests on a fair and equitable basis. To this task he brought such splendid constructive ability that the railroad rate commission not only has solved the problem so that the people secure good services for the rate paid, but the corporation receives adequate protection and a fair rate of interest on its investment; and the highest judicial tribunal in the state has within the month placed its seal of commendation, legal and constitutional approval upon the law creating the said commission, which today is recognized as the model of its kind and stands as a monument to the energy, ability and patriotism of Robert M. La Follette.

Pointing this convention to the record of unparalleled achievements mentioned written upon the statute books of his own state and incorporated in the records of congress, we ask you, gentlemen of the convention, to be honest with yourselves, and with all due respect to the other candidates, honest with the people of this country, and nominate that man whose heart beats in closer sympathy and accord with the needs and demands of the American people than any candidate whose name has been here presented; that man whose clarion voice for the last decade has resounded throughout the Union, championing the cause of representative government and pleading for the control and regulation of public service corporations in the interest of all the people.

Wisconsin has presented her candidate, and now in behalf of that great body of American freemen who believe that the source of all government, in the last analysis, should be directly and unreservedly in the hands of the people; who believe that government functions should be administered in the interests of all the people. I rise to second the nomination of that golden hearted gentleman—that fearless, unconquered and unconquerable knight, who ever rides to victory in the lists for the people—Wisconsin's favorite son, the nation's eminent patriot—Robert M. La Follette.

ANTI-BETTING LAW HURTS BIG RACES

NEW YORK, June 19.—There will be no record breaking attendance at Sheepshead Bay this afternoon for the 25th running of the Suburban, owing to the new anti-betting law, but many thousands who love the sport will be on hand to witness the race. The field is one of the classiest of many years. The favorite is J. R. Keen's Ballot. Master Robert and King James also have many admirers while Dora Nante and Fair Play are well thought of.

MILLION DOLLAR TUBE WORKS BURNS

SHELBY, O., June 19.—Fire early today destroyed three and a half acres of buildings at the Shelby Steel Tube Works, a branch of the United States Steel corporation, with a loss from $750,000 to $1,000,000. The water pressure was insufficient. The plant had been idle three months.

Chatauqua Speaker Shows Many People are Fools Who Believe Themselves Philosophers

TODAY'S PROGRAM

"I am glad to see so many people of La Crosse interested in the subject of 'The Martyrdom of Fools,'" said Mr. Fletcher yesterday lecturing at the Chatauqua. "The ones who need the talk the least are the ones who come and hear me, but those who are afraid the lecture may strike them are the ones who stay away from a subject like this is being discussed. I do not have to make this an illustrated lecture because there are so many fools in each community. Fools are the comedians of life, amusing the rest of the world. We are all blades in the front yard of life and will be cut down by the lawnmower of time, but the fool is the dandelion. Fools are useful in life for we can learn something from every fool we meet. One time when I was lecturing at a small town on this same subject I impressed it upon my audience that we could learn something from every fool we meet and a man in the back row stood up and said, 'Yep, that's what we came here for. Go on with your foolishness.'"

"Fools may be divided into two classes, male and female, for there are just as many female fools as there are male fools. If a woman wants to make a fool of herself you can't stop her. Take for instance the fool who had herself nailed up in a barrel and floated over the Niagara Falls and floated ashore, the first one to live through the attempt although many had tried it before. She was a feminine fool, and one of the kind you can't stop."

"The prisons, jails and penitentiaries are full of fools and nearly every day some fool is led to the scaffold or the chair. If there is no one who cares for his fool body he is given to some medical institution and his body is dissected, thereby broadening man's knowledge of the human body. That kind of a fool is a martyr and does some kind of good without knowing it. There are fools on the platforms, in the offices, in the schools and everywhere, fools that think they know more than anybody else. A bishop and minister were once having a debate in a small country town. The bishop took his place on the platform with much pomp and ceremony and addressed the audience in this manner: 'Ladies and Gentlemen, I am very well acquainted with this subject and I will literally swallow my opponent, argument and all.' The minister opened his harangue by saying in a screeching voice, 'Ladies and Gentlemen, if my opponent swallows me he will have more brains in his stomach than he has in his head.' The minister won the debate."

Fools the Butterflies

"Fools are the butterflies hovering over the intellectual mudholes of life. They leap blindly in where angels fear to tread. An ignorant Irishman by the name of Pat used to hang around the express office continually. Pat didn't work there, but he had a good job killing time. He used to meddle with everything he found and caused the manager of the office much trouble. One day he found a box with something alive in it. He opened the cover a little wider to see what was in it and a little rabbit jumped out, ran out through the door and down the street. Pat followed in hot pursuit and chased the rabbit about four miles into the country. He flopped over a rail fence and when he had regained his equilibrium he saw the rabbit just diving into the brush, half a mile to the windward. Pat in a towering rage, stood up and shook his fist at the rabbit and said, 'That's right, keep right on running. You don't know where you're going to anyway, because the address is on the box.'"

"There are fools who shut their eyes and vote and these fools are the real anarchists of the country. By this kind of voting they place men in office who smile on one side of their face and cry on the other so that the applause coming from both directions and they are responsible for the political machine. We want men who are not afraid to do what they think is right whether it agrees with the majority or not. There are fools who dress up and go to church with pious looks and when the contribution box comes around they drop in a whole cent expecting to bribe the devil to let them slide down the fire escape. The philanthropists who give large sums of money to charity are fools of the same kind."

"There are pastors who are fools because they preach in such a way as to satisfy their congregations whether it is right or not, and coax the devil out of the back door with candy-coated rhetoric."

"There are boy fools with cigarettes in their mouths, fire at one with difficulty by those in the gallery. It was then that the crowd wearied with much speech-making, accorded with much the same treatment that had been given to other speakers, but when he had finished, there was much applause.

"Rah, rah Wisconsin," shook the steel girders.

C. A. McGee of Milwaukee, who made the seconding speech, stood on the platform several minutes before he was allowed to proceed. Mr. McGee was in better voice than Mr. Cochems and when he began to speak it was evident that he could be heard to the furthest corner of the convention hall.

Partly because he could be heard and partly because he, too, was making such a speech as is not often heard in a republican convention, he was listened to to the finish of his talk without interruption, save for a cheer when he struck a responsive chord.

10,000 On Their Feet.
When Mr. McGee finished, the demonstration began. The 10,000 people in the galleries rose to their feet, waved canes, fans and flags, cheering all the while. The Wisconsin delegates stood upon their chairs, each with a little banner bearing a likeness of La Follette. The ovation grew in volume and in enthusiasm.

Then all eyes in the convention were turned toward the center aisle, where R. J. White of Milwaukee was carrying on his shoulders the son of Senator La Follette, the boy carrying a large placard, which read "Little Bob." Chairman Lodge pounded with his gavel and attempted to restore order, but the pounding of the gavel could not be heard. The band in the rear gallery played. The leader waved his arms, but no one heard the music.

This was Wisconsin day in the convention. Twice Wisconsin was heard from. Twice the galleries shouted their approval. Every Wisconsin man in Chicago was hoarse. Every Wisconsin man was happy.

Insures State to Taft.

It was said last night that one effect of the cordial reception given to Wisconsin and to La Follette, as Wisconsin's candidate for president, will be to ensure the Badger state to Taft. Not all the Wisconsin men attending the convention have been pleased with the treatment that the Wisconsin delegation has received here.

They have had several complaints made and some of them have been little short of bitter but Wisconsin is happy over the ovation given to its candidate.

Hanly Handed "Lemon."
The experience of Gov. J. Frank Hanly of Indiana, who nominated Fairbanks, was typical of all. No sooner had he taken the platform than the galleries insisted that he name his man and quit.

He turned upon the east gallery from which the cries of "Nominate him," came and shouted:

"You wait and I will nominate him when I get ready."

Again the gallery interrupted. The greatest tumult came from the sections back of the stage.

Gov. Hanly wheeled around and, shaking his fist at the turbulent galleries, cried out:

"You keep quiet; I'll nominate him when I get ready."

The governor got a semblance of silence and some applause, although the din rose again.

"Get ready," cried a man with leather lungs.

Under difficulties Gov. Hanly proceeded.

Catcalls and Clapping.

There were catcalls and the clapping of hands, drowning the speaker's voice.

Gov. Hanly started to say: "My friend McKinley." He got only as far as "Friend," when a delegate yelled "Roosevelt." The crowd cheered for two minutes.

The governor's favorite gesture was to smite the palm of his hand with his fist. The crowd took up the gesture. Like a well-drilled gymnast and nothing at the other. No future can be expected from these and as they grow older they grow to be bigger fools."

Mr. Fletcher's talk was a very stirring one and one calculated to make people think. He lived up to his reputation of holding his audience and during his talk not one left the auditorium.

The Barnards rendered a concert which lasted about three-quarters of an hour. Every one in this musical family is an artist and the young ladies are as good looking as they are expert players.

Evening Program
The evening program was a double-header, and the Chatauqua management had a pleasant surprise in the form of Mr. Pachard, the great cartoonist. No doubt the people would have been pleased with Pachard and his cartoons only Mr. Pachard and his cartoons made the evening a howling success. He illustrated his pictures with numerous funny stories, poems and anecdotes.

When drawing the picture of an Arkansas farmer he told of this testimonial sent to a patent medicine house by an illiterate Arkansas farmer: "Dere Sur: I hav yur many years used a wart on de bak uc my neck fur a collar button but after useng yure wart medisen for too year I ken now hang my pant on et."

While sketching the picture of a society girl he said he once went into a dry good store to buy something for his girl. He picked up a small handkerchief which had about one square inch of cold cloth in it for practical purposes and asked the clerk how much it was. The clerk answered 22 which he thought meant the size. He told the clerk to wrap up a half a dozen of them and when he came to pay her she said "they are twenty-two dollars each." He turned away in disgust and said "that's too much money to blow in."

slum class the convention thousands slapped their palms each time the speaker did so.

Gov. Hanly cried, as he shook his fist at one of the galleries: "My friend, it will depend upon you how long I talk. I can stay here until night if necessary."

The crowd yelled again and a storm of applause drowned the chairman's gavel. Every allusion to the vice president was greeted with cheers and catcalls, and when Gov. Hanly likened Fairbanks to a pure marble shaft the great crowd went into convulsions of mirth.

"Get the hook!" Yell Given.

"Get the hook!" yelled a man.

Gov. Hanly was beside himself with rage. He had always prided himself on his oratory. Now he stood on the stage, the butt of the jests of a crowd screaming with laughter.

Finally Senator Lodge came to the front of the platform and gave the crowd a lecture.

"I wish to say to the spectators," he said, "that you are here by invitation of the national committee, and every candidate has a right to be heard. I will say now that unless the interruptions cease I shall call upon the police to clear the galleries."

The galleries subsided and a cheer from the delegates showed that the argument was well received.

"You may not want to hear me now," cried Hanly, soon as he could again make himself heard, "but you'll want to hear me before November, and you'll want to hear from Indiana then."

Others "Guyed," Too.

Most of the other "nominators" were played horse with but not to such a degree as the somber governor of Indiana, who went to his seat with a wilted collar, a wilted reputation as an orator, and the proud record of having been the most extremely guyed patriot who has appeared before a national convention in years.

BURKE IS VICTOR IN NOMINATION

—FORMER CONGRESSMAN HAS A CLEAR MARGIN IN S. D.

MARTIN'S VOTE IN DOUBT

—Both Contestants Are Stalwarts—Martin Is the Winner in Fight Against Hall

—SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 19.—Complete returns on congressmen which have been received from all but three of the fifty-three counties in South Dakota, show that Charles H. Burke, former congressman from South Dakota, has without the slightest doubt, been nominated for congress, and that Eben W. Martin, also a former congressman from the state, on the face of the returns has also been nominated. Both are stalwarts. The insurgents for several days have practically conceded the nomination of Mr. Burke, but hoped that Congressman Hall had won out and defeated Mr. Martin.

With only Blue, Gregory and Sully counties to be heard from, Martin has a majority of 487. While the remaining three counties will cut his lead down somewhat, the insurgents concede that his margin will be at least three hundred. Their only hope of Congressman Hall pulling through is that errors may be found in the present figures by the state canvassing board, and that hoped for errors will result to the advantage of their candidate.

THROAT CUT; GETS 30 DAYS

—MELROSE, Minn., June 19.—Intoxicated and with his throat badly slashed, James Burns, fifty years old, was found lying near the coal chutes. Police Officer Morehead took the man to the jail, where a surgeon found it necessary to take three stitches to close the wound. Burns admitted that he was a tramp and a search resulted in the arrest of two other hoboes, also intoxicated. They gave their names as George Freeman and George Lewis, but declared they knew nothing about Burns' injuries.

All three were arraigned in police court and were given thirty days each on pleading guilty to the charge of drunkenness. While they are serving this time the authorities will investigate the cause of Burns' injuries.

PAYNE IS ACQUITTED

—FARGO, N. D., June 19.—In the United States court Thomas Payne, charged with complicity in the Manvel postoffice robbery, was acquitted. Fred Stevens, who pleaded guilty to being one of the men engaged in the crime, claims that he never saw Payne and that the latter was not a member of the party.

His Romance Blasted.—He entered the epistolary world at the romantic fire of an ancient knight. "Darling," he exclaimed, passionately, "if you should vanish even for a day I would scour the earth." And the cold, haughty beauty pointed down to the stained floor. "Never mind the earth, Mr. Basswood," she said in cold-storage tones. "Ask the cook for a bar of soap and scour those muddy tracks you just brought in." Shaking his fist at the paper mache pug dog, he vanished into the night. —Exchange.

Rather Rough.—"Smooth-faced villain!" hissed the beautiful heroine, as she signed the papers. "What a base canard!" muttered the villain under his teeth. "The manager wouldn't pay me off last night and I couldn't even get shaved."

—ROBBERS DYNAMITE SAFE AND GET AWAY WITH LOOT

MAKE ESCAPE ON A HANDCAR

—Enter Postoffice and After Breaking Safe Get Away With Cash and Stamps to Amount of $500

—BEMIDJI, Minn., June 19.—When W. T. Blakeley, postmaster and merchant at Turtle River, came down to his office yesterday he was surprised to find that the office building had been broken into and the village safe blown to pieces. The robbers secured $100 in money and over $100 worth of stamps belonging to the United States government, $200 cash belonging to the village of Farley, and about $100 belonging to Mr. Blakeley. The section store-room at Turtle River was broken open, and a handcar stolen. The robbers covered the postoffice windows with blankets to deaden the sound, and no damage was done to the building. However, the robbers and handcar are still missing, and a clue as to the whereabouts of the robbers has not been discovered. The officials are making a vigorous search and expect to land their men in a short time.

State workmen left headquarters here today to remove more of the bridge in order to let the dredge through.

—SPEARFISH, S. D.—The success of the electric power and lighting plant recently installed eight miles below this city, has led the company to seek a location for still another mammoth plant. One of the largest canal systems in the Black Hills will be built. The canal will furnish the power to run an electric power plant at Beulah, Wyo., developing 1,800 horse power. The power will be used in the mines of the Black Hills.

TODAY'S GRAM GOSSIP

Crop Conditions.
Following from Hoyt at Gibson City, Ill.: Along the Lake Erie road oats are poor, short and yellow, and are drowned out and have not stood. Corn short and weedy, ground baked hard; need rain badly. Old corn and oats pretty well cleared up. LeCount Finley Barrell & Co.'s crop expert wires from Kingman, Kansas: Weather fine; harvesting in full blast; wheat splendid quality.

Grain Opinions.
Chicago—Clement Curtis Co. say: Harvesting is now quite general in lower half of winter wheat belt and mixed returns will be the rule, and market will be governed largely by the price at which the new wheat comes out.

Finley Barrell: In view of strong commercial situation and bullish possibilities believe advantage should be taken of any further good set back in order to make purchases.

B. W. Snow writes from Hutchinson, Kansas: Drove in Reno, Rice and McPherson counties. Harvest in full swing, no damage of consequence from rain; straw short and stand in many fields thinned by Hessian fly. Yield will not reach early promise as straw fall very marked last two weeks. Corn only about knee high but reasonably clean and being cultivated. Stand inferior and can make only moderate crop at best. Weather favorable, scattered thunder showers.

TITLE DEFENDERS LOSE BEST MAN

—POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 19.—Syracuse arrived at Poughkeepsie Wednesday morning, completing the roster of the crews that are to row in the intercollegiate regatta. Coach Ten Eyck has lost one of the best men in his freshmen eight, Wirsig, who was operated on yesterday for appendicitis. His seat at No. 3 has been assigned to Zeller.

In the morning the water was smooth, but the coaches hung off, thinking the same conditions would prevail in the afternoon and they could give the men hard work then. As a result long but easy pulls prevailed for the first row of the day. Courtney took the Cornellians downstream close to shore for a pull to Milton's Landing. Syracuse spent most of the morning rigging shells, but all of the crews went out late in the morning for short pulls.

The Wisconsin men got out first and young Ten Eyck took his men upstream at a slow rate for one of the longest rows they have yet had. Pennsylvania followed almost the same plan. Cornell and Syracuse again went down the river, hugging the shore.

PREACHER PAYS $10 FINE

—ELYSIAN, Minn., June 19.—Rev. W. S. Stone of Westbrook was arrested here by Game and Fish Warden J. H. Jordan of Mankato for illegal fishing, and paid a fine of $10 and costs. He was once before fined for violating the fish law, it is asserted, but could not resist temptation and was caught manipulating four poles and lines from a boat on Lake Francis. He was doing a flourishing business pulling in black bass when the game warden interfered and took him into custody. In justice Warburton's court in this village he was required to turn the other cheek to the law.

KEEPS SALOONS UNDER "LID."

—FERGUS FALLS, Minn., June 19.—This city is not in the prohibition "dry" line. Three of the eight aldermen vote against the granting of all liquor licenses, and a fourth votes no whenever the applicant's standing as a law-abiding saloon man has been questioned.

LONDON PAPERS' COMMENT FRIENDLY

COMMEND SELECTION OF THE WAR SECRETARY

SMALLER OF SIAMESE TWINS

Is One Comment Followed with Good Natured Excuse; Roosevelt and Taft Pleased.

LONDON, June 19.—Following the lead of morning papers in friendly comment on the nomination of Taft, the afternoon papers commend the selection, though a few are inclined to sneer at the supposed sub posed subservience to Roosevelt and his policies.

The Standard describes Taft as the smaller of the "Siamese Twins," though it doesn't wish to be understood as making uncomplimentary allusions. It declares he learned state craft under a brilliant master, but plainly possesses a mind of his own and has great ability.

The Westminster Gazette gives praise to both Taft and Roosevelt, and says Roosevelt is the creator of a new American type of statesman and urges him to remain the advisor of the nation and Taft.

See Bryan's Election. The Globe doesn't deem Taft's election at all certain. It says Bryan is certain to be his opponent and a hard fight will result.

President's Statement.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19.—President Roosevelt was playing tennis when the word of the nomination came to him and was greatly pleased. He ordered his "statement" prepared for several days, to be delivered to the legions of newspaper correspondents. It follows:

"I feel that the country is indeed to be congratulated upon the nomination of Mr. Taft. I have known him intimately for many years, and I have a peculiar feeling for him because throughout that time we have worked for the same objects with the same purposes and ideas.

"I do not believe there could be found in all the country a man so well fitted to be president. He is not only absolutely fearless, absolutely disinterested and upright, but he has the widest acquaintance with the nation's needs without and within, and the broadest sympathy with all our citizens. He would be as emphatically a president of the plain people as Lincoln himself; yet not Lincoln himself would be freer from the least taint of demagoguery, the least tendency to arouse or appeal to class hatred of any kind.

Knows the People. "He has a peculiar and intimate knowledge and sympathy with the needs of all our people—of the farmer, of the wage worker, of the business man, of the property owner. No matter what a man's occupation or social position, no matter what his creed, his color, or the section of the country from which he comes, if he is an honest hard working man who tries to do his duty toward his neighbor and toward the country, he can rest assured that he will have in Mr. Taft the most upright of representatives and the most fearless of champions. Mr. Taft stands against all privilege, and he stands pre-eminently for the broad principles of American citizenship which lies at the foundation of our national well-being."

Taft Family Gets News. Secretary Taft and his family and a few friends were at the war department awaiting the news and when it was conveyed to them a few seconds after the voting in Chicago the family had a little private jubilation before the crowd of officials and others waiting outside the door was admitted. The secretary would make no forecast of the coming campaign, but seemed to be entering the fight in a fine frame of mind. He later called upon the president and received his congratulations.

ESCH DON'T WANT TO BE A SENATOR

Representative John J. Esch of La Crosse, attending the Chicago convention gave out the following interview declaring himself out of the race to succeed U. S. Senator Isaac Stephenson of Marinette:

"I supposed that it was pretty generally understood that my inclination is to return to the house of representatives. It has been published in some of the Wisconsin newspapers that I would not be a candidate for the United States senate. I had intended to make a definite announcement soon, but I have not yet consulted all my friends who are entitled to be heard on this subject. However, I will say that it is much against my personal inclination to enter the senatorial race, and I shall not do so unless some arguments are presented which I have not yet heard."

ANGRY LABOR IS CONDEMNING PLANK

CHICAGO, June 19.—"That isn't an anti-injunction plank the republicans adopted. It's a pro injunction. The only difference between the party's principles now and before the convention is the people who are to be enjoined shall have notice."

This is the opinion of Gompers on the platform adopted yesterday. The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has adjourned until July 16th, when they meet in Denver to try to get the plank into the democratic platform.

One of Manchester's sextons, in making his report of burials, is explicit to a commendable degree. For instance, such entries as this occur: "Died, John Green, male; aged three days; unmarried."
